

Marion Tucker Reference from Aaron Laurito

Over the past seventeen years that I have known Marion Tucker much has changed. She has been my surrogate mother and nanny (from the ages of 2 till 8), my temporary babysitter, and my friend. Through each of these stages she has played an integral role in my life.

Marion's role as my nanny and mentor has affected me every day since she came into my family's home. She was always encouraging, positive and loving. She continually guided and showed me what was right and wrong. And through these trials of experimentation that I explored, she was always fair and caring; truly looking out for what was best for me. She pushed me to grow up confident, just, and happy.

Since my early childhood days, I have reflected upon my upbringing, which Marion has had such an important part of. I am thankful everyday, for the values she has instilled in me. I feel that Marion is not only a good nanny to children, but a good person as well. Through these two characteristics, she gives children a reason to respect her and to trust her. She has proven through my family and many others that she is incredible in helping to raise children. I hope to hire her one day to help me raise my own children and I strongly recommend that you do the same today. There are not many nannies today that are as experienced, trustworthy, and valuable as this one.
